LGTB Issues in the Workplace

Most countries and states do not provide legal protections for their LGBT employees.

61 out of 196 counties prohibit discrimination in employment because of sexual orientation.

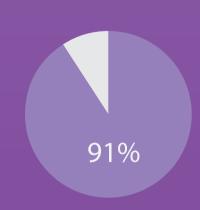

In the United States, there is no law protecting the rights of LGBT employees. 29 out of 50 of the states don't have state-level protection meaning employees can be fired for being LGBT.

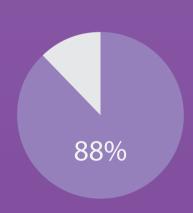

There is no state-level gender identity protection. Out of 50 states, 33 of them allow employees to be fired for being transgender.

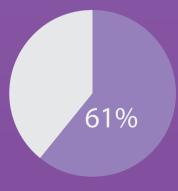

Fortune 500 companies are making efforts to offer benefits to their LGBT employees.

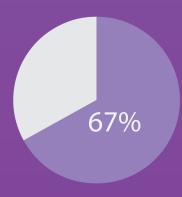

91% include protection for sexual orientation,

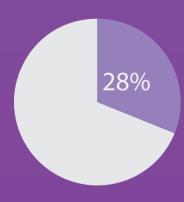

88% have non-discrimination policies that include sexual orientation.

61% include gender identity protection,

67% include domestic partner health benefits,

28% include transgender health-inclusive benefits.